EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS · PAID HOLIDAY

Paid holiday is 5.6 weeks a year, not a favour.

Almost everyone who works for someone else is entitled to it. For someone on a 5-day week that is 28 paid days a year.

HOW IT WORKS OUT FOR YOU

28

The law gives weeks, not days. A 5-day week → 28 days. A 3-day week → at least 16.8. On irregular hours it builds in hours, not days: 12.07% of what you work.

> Nothing is added above 28 days: a worker on a 6-day week still gets 28. And bank holidays do not have to be given as paid leave — an employer may count them inside the 28.

WHO DOES NOT HAVE THIS RIGHT

Personal

The right belongs to anyone who does the work personally for someone who is not, under the contract, a client of a business they run.

> Outside it: people in business on their own account, with their own clients. "Freelance" or "zero hours" can still be a worker, with paid holiday. Courts and tribunals decide status, not the label.

EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS · PAID HOLIDAY

Running payroll for your people?

Message us and we will go through the holiday and the payslips. Not given it? Acas helps free — the LRA in Northern Ireland.

0330 133 1886

General information, not legal advice. We run payroll.