TRADING ALLOWANCE · £1,000

Earning a bit on the side? The first £1,000 a year is tax free.

If you do repairs, deliveries, cleaning, hire out your own tools or buy things to resell — alongside a job — the first £1,000 a year is tax free and you do not have to tell HMRC, unless you have another reason to file.

WHAT COUNTS

£1,000

It counts what came in, not what you kept. If the tax-year total passes £1,000, you must register for Self Assessment by 5 October in the following tax year.

> Wages do not count towards it. £1,000 is the 2026/27 figure — it rises to £3,000 from 6 April 2027.

WHO CANNOT USE IT

0

You cannot use it on money from your own employer, from your spouse's or civil partner's employer, or from a company you or a connected person controls.

> Nor on a partnership's profit. Below £1,000 a return can still be filed voluntarily — for Maternity Allowance or voluntary pension contributions.

TRADING ALLOWANCE · £1,000

Gone past £1,000?

Message us and we will add up what came in across the tax year and tell you plainly whether you have to declare it. No obligation.

0330 133 1886

General information. For your own situation, speak to an accountant.