EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS · PAID HOLIDAY

Paid holiday is 5.6 weeks a year, not a favour.

Almost everyone who works for someone else is entitled to it. For someone on a 5-day week that is 28 paid days a year.

HOW IT WORKS OUT FOR YOU

28

The law gives weeks, not days. A 5-day week → 28 days. A 3-day week → at least 16.8. On irregular hours it builds in hours, not days: 12.07% of what you work.

> Nothing is added above 28 days: a worker on a 6-day week still gets 28. And bank holidays do not have to be given as paid leave — an employer may count them inside the 28.

WHO DOES NOT HAVE THIS RIGHT

Contract

The contract decides, not the label: the right belongs to anyone who works personally for someone who is not a client of their business.

> Outside it: people in business on their own account, with their own clients. "Freelance" or "zero hours" can still be a worker, with paid holiday. Status test: gov.uk/employment-status

EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS · PAID HOLIDAY

Running payroll for your people?

Message us and we will go through the holiday and the payslips. A worker who was not given it? Acas helps free.

0330 133 1886

General information, not legal advice. We run payroll.