MARRIAGE ALLOWANCE

Married and one of you earns little? Pay £252 less tax.

Everyone can earn £12,570 a year before paying tax. If one of you does not reach that, they can pass part of it to the other.

HOW IT WORKS

£1,260

The lower earner moves £1,260 of their tax-free amount across. The result is up to £252 less tax a year for the other.

> You have to ask for it — it never arrives on its own. And you can claim for past years, back to 6 April 2022.

WHO CANNOT CLAIM

£50,270

If you live together but are not married and not in a civil partnership, you cannot claim. That is the one people get wrong. Nor can you if the higher earner is over £50,270.

> In Scotland the limit is £43,662. And you cannot hold this and Married Couple's Allowance at the same time.

MARRIAGE ALLOWANCE

Think it applies to you?

Message us and we will check whether you qualify and how many past years are still open. No obligation.

0330 133 1886

General information. For your own situation, speak to an accountant.